

Asia Talks

A webinar series by IJP

The pandemic bears the challenge to increase the quality and quantity of fact based information across borders and disciplines. Furthermore it questions our personal values, our living conditions as well as our reporting approach of manifold topics. However, technology gives us the chance to communicate across borders without crossing borders.

Therefore our on-going alumni webinar series addresses topics like the future of work (place) including gender issues, the influence of arts on climate education, a greener fashion industry, new concepts of mobility and transportation, farm to fork, climate goals in reference to the economic recovery, the influence of media on societal changes, capacity building for minorities, grassroots movements for climate change and more. YOU are more than welcome to enhance our Asia Talks with new topics and/or regional developments that are of cross-border interest.

Get engaged, trigger interaction and overall important – let us stay in contact. Tune in for joint opportunities of exchange.

Series: 1st Friday of the month (reserved for climate topics) and 3rd Wednesday of the month (general topics)

Tune in: 02:00 pm CEST on Wednesday, 10:30 am CEST on Fridays

Where: online webinar on Zoom – links will be send after you have registered.
